Community Corner

New GW Library and FBA Partnership

Through a partnership between the FBA History Project and Gelman Library, community member can review the past issues of the Foggy Bottom News on-line at any time or place.

Its format has changed over the years but its dedication to providing important community resources and information has not! This newsletter has provided an important community resource over the decades. Giving updates on important events, development and construction updates, Foggy Bottom history, advertisement space, and community happenings - including information about the comings and goings of residents (and their pets), recipes, poems, original artwork, and more!

Thanks also to the Foggy Bottom Trust for their generous initial grant offer to fund this project, and GWU Archivist Brigette Kamsler, Digital Services Manager Dalton Alves, and the staff in Special Collections for their work.

Student Affairs Updates

- Student Rights & Responsibilities received 12 reports of off-campus incidents in the near neighborhood this past year.
- Student Rights & Responsibilities --> name changed August 1!

- Our new website will be students.gwu.edu/cesa.
- Our core functionalities will not change. We will still do the same follow-up options, including for reports of off-campus misconduct.
- We are expanding our conflict education and resolution pathways.

Business, Real Estate, and Sustainability Updates-

New Activity on I Street Mall: Elevate Flea Market

- Elevate will run a flea market on Saturdays 10 am to 6 pm.
- This benefits the student run organization StartupAvenue.
- Approximately 30 vendors participate, many student run.
- Vendors range from vintage clothing to art to crafts.
- Market provides student engagement, affordable shopping and sustainable practices.
- Open to the public - this has been well received at Kogan Plaza for several months of operation.
